

Sing-A-Long with “Million Bazillion”

"We don't talk about money"

First heard in this episode of "Million Bazillion" about why money can be awkward to talk about.

We don't talk about money
Adults don't find it funny!
We don't talk about income!
Whether we save it or spend some - om om om!

If you knew how much I make
It would make both our brains break
Our friendship could not survive it
So we'll just keep money private
Take it, Bridget!

[TALK-STYLE RAP]

When discussing money, tread lightly
Proceed in a way most politely
Adults are more nervous than we seem
Money hits at the core of our self esteem

We worry about it all the time
But we rarely discuss, even when it rhymes
I can rap, I can flow
But I can't have chill finance convo

We don't talk 'bout dinero
My bank balance is zero- oh - oh oh oh
Now I am embarrassed
I told you too much 'bout money/
Can we just take a break now...

"Hamilton's Polka Dity"

First heard in this episode of "Million Bazillion" about why countries have different currencies.

When America was starting out

Tryin' to shape its destiny

We didn't want to use the British pound

So we made our own currency!

I wanted that currency centralized

Through a stable American bank

Called the First Bank of the United States

And for that bank you have me to thank!

Not everyone was a fan of my plan

Including Thomas Jefferson

He thought the bank would be monopoly

But eventually my plan won - on on on

Then in Seventeen-Ninety-Two

The Coinage Act was passed

Creating the U.S. dollar

And the dollar caught on fast

With that dollar, we could pay our debts

And establish our independence

And create a sustainable economy

For for our eventual descendants

BRIDGET: OK, well, this has been an informative polka, but we should get going.

HAMILTON: But wait, I'm not done with the song!

RYAN: Really, I could listen to polka music all day, but Bridget's right, we should scram.

Now grab a wad of paper cash

And tell me what you see

On the single you'll see Washington

On the ten spot you'll see me! Weeee!

My polka song is almost done
I sang it just for you
With any luck, I'll sing it one day
In a huge Broadway revue!

I can't wait to sing it one day
In a huge Broadway revue! Wooo!

(SPEAKS)

So, what do y'all think? Can't you just imagine that song being a huge Broadway hit?

"Ponzi Schemes"

First heard in this episode of "Million Bazillion" about Ponzi schemes and other scams.

There's people out there who are not being true
There's people out there who wanna scam you

[SPOKEN]

They'll put on a big show and tell ya, "Step right up, step right up..."

Step right up and listen to a promise of great riches
If you've some money, then lemme toss a few pitches
Of quick and easy cash, the secret I can't wait to tell you and if you fall for that one, well I got a bridge to sell you

There's multi-level marketing schemes and scams of confidence
The Spanish Prisoner or the rich Nigerian prince
They'll promise easy payouts for a little cash advance
"You better buy in now 'cause this may be your only chance!"

But they're so full of baloney
You've gotta learn to spot a phoney

Like a varietal of Ponzi that's called a Pyramid scheme
It works just like Ponzi but you have to form a team of recruits paid by recruits paid by recruits one layer under until the it falls apart and dreams of wealth are torn asunder

There are many scams just like this, so it pays to be on guard
Money's rarely earned so easy, it's more often earned quite hard
But easier to keep if you don't fall for frauds and cheats
These are lessons Brenda's learned parks and in the streets

When you see a scam,
You gotta say, "Wham!! Bam! No thank you, ma'am!"
You've got to slam that...
SCAM!

"Recession Crushers"

First heard in this episode of "Million Bazillion" about recessions.

When spending slows
To a creepy crawl
And the economy's bad
Who should ya call?
RECESSION CRUSHERS!
EWW-OHH
RECESSION CRUSHERS!

When recession's knocking
At your gats
Who should ya call?
EWW-OHH
RECESSION CRUSHERS!
RECESSION CRUSHERS!

"The Dollar Bill Song"

From "Million Bazillion" the Musical"

Have you ever looked closely at a U.S. dollar?
You'll see solemn George W. there in his collar
He's surrounded by a fancy oval frame

With his name beneath his portrait, decreeing his fame

Above his head you'll see these words:

The United States of America and Federal Reserve

To his right is a name, to his left one too

And numbers all around him that give us a clue

About where and when the bill was inked, you see

Maybe Fort Worth, Texas or Washington D.C.

Flip the bill on its back for another colorful scene

The word on is in the center, outlined in green

Two Latin phrases surround a weird pyramid

The apex is an eye with a sleepy lid

The bald eagle is a symbol we all know well

It's no surprise we see one on the dollar bill

It holds arrows in one talon to symbolize war

In the other there's an olive branch. But wait, there's more.

In its beak is a ribbon with an important note

E pluribus unum: Every hear of that quote?

It means out of many one—a message 'bout strength

'bout building a nation together, 'bout being in sync

We bet you learned a thing — or two

From this dollar song

So let's review what you heard, can you sing along?

There's Washington with his fancy collar

There are numbers and signatures, do you follow?

There's info about where the bill was made

There's a pyramid, an eagle, and eye — no shade!

There's the Latin phrase about unity

That's the greenback's story, don't you see?

There's Washington with his fancy collar

There are numbers and signatures, do you follow?

There's info about where the bill was made

There's a pyramid, an eagle, and eye – no shade!

There's the Latin phrase about unity

That's the greenback's story, don't you see?

Every greenback tells a story – a little mystery

A small tale about originality

If you look real close, you'll see what I mean

If you look real close, you'll see what we mean.

"Dolores' Shopping Spree Song"

First heard in this episode of "Million Bazillion" about why it feels good to spend money.

Money money

Spend, spend, spend

Will this feeling ever end?

Let's stay in here another hour

Flexing all our buying power

Every time you hear that ding

I'll do my job, you won't feel a thing

Except a thrill

Every time

You run your card at the checkout line

A designer sweater for my cat

A wool V-neck, could he go for that?

Jibbitz charms

for my shoes

Available in packs of twos
scented chapstick, SPF 30
I think I'll buy a pack of...
30

In the mall, like uptown ladies
Dropping cash like it's the '80s
Spending it all on me, me, me
I feel like a bonfire vanity

In the shopping mall, my emotion's steady-
Uh oh, a shoe store, are we ready?

Do you have anything in a flat?
Cause if you do, I'll just take that
Don't need to make this all 'bout me
Just need to get from A to B

Bridget, why not spring for heels?
Spending gives you happy feels!

New Air Gordons, that's my shoe!
CASHIER: I think they look good on you.

That cashier says I'm a real cool guy
She must mean it, why would she lie?
I'll take 20 of those shoes
I mean 20 pairs, so 40 shoes!

I used to be sad but it went away
when I bought this lilac body spray

CASHIER: Ahh, my eye!

RYAN: Sorry! Sorry!

CASHIER: Why did you spray that in my face?!?

RYAN: (SPOKEN) I just wanted to spray a little, so you could smell. I'm so sorry. Are you ok?

CASHIER: (SPOKEN) Yeah, fine. Just don't spray deodorant in people's faces. I'll just ring you up.
